

To become a member of the Voluntary Organizations Active in Disaster (VOAD) in Montana, you can follow these steps:

1. Research and identify the Montana VOAD chapter: Start by finding the Montana chapter of VOAD. You can do this by searching online or contacting the Montana Disaster and Emergency Services (MTDES) or the national VOAD organization for information on how to get in touch with the state chapter.
2. Contact the Montana VOAD: Reach out to the Montana VOAD through their designated contact information. This could be an email address, phone number, or a membership application form available on their website. Express your interest in becoming a member and request information on the application process.
3. Complete the membership application: Fill out the membership application form provided by the Montana VOAD. This form will typically ask for your organization's details, contact information, areas of expertise, and how you can contribute to disaster response and recovery efforts.
4. Provide supporting documentation: Depending on the requirements of the Montana VOAD, you may need to provide supporting documentation such as your organization's mission statement, proof of insurance, certifications, and any relevant licenses or permits.
5. Attend meetings and training sessions: Once your application is reviewed and approved, you will likely be invited to attend meetings, training sessions, and workshops organized by the Montana VOAD. These gatherings provide opportunities to network with other members, learn about disaster response protocols, and contribute to planning and coordination efforts.
6. Collaborate with other members: As a member of the Montana VOAD, actively participate in collaborative efforts with other member organizations. This can include sharing resources, coordinating disaster response initiatives, and working together to support affected communities.

Remember, the specific process and requirements for becoming a member of the Montana VOAD may vary. It is important to directly contact the Montana VOAD for the most accurate and up-to-date information on how to join their organization.
