63rd Annual Montana Airport Directory Released

The MDT Aeronautics Division is proud to present you with the 63rd annual Montana Airport Directory. The aviation community of Montana has again provided the cover photo for this year's directory by way of a photo contest. We asked our Montana and the Sky newsletter readers for cover photo submissions, and posted the photos received on MDT's Facebook page where followers voted for their favorite image.

Many streams and rivers of Montana are excellent navigation aids such as the Yellowstone, Missouri, Clark Fork, Bitterroot, and Flathead, among others. Near the Laurentian and Continental Divides, our waterways separate at Triple Divide Peak in Glacier National Park, eventually flowing into the Gulf of Mexico, Pacific Ocean, or Hudson Bay. As shown in Daniel's photo, these waterways are still giving us a path to follow, even from the air. Whether you are following a river as Daniel followed the Yellowstone, steering by mountain peak, following an airway, or using the great magenta line of the GPS, Montana's skies never fail to offer an extraordinary flying experience. We enjoyed reviewing all the photo submissions and our thanks goes out to everyone who submitted. It is always enjoyable for us to see and hear of your aviation experiences in Montana, and we encourage you to reach out with stories and pictures.

From all of us at MDT Aeronautics Division, we wish you safe flying and clear skies.
